Hello, I am Dr. Pamela Lee, the developer of this course on global leadership and ethics.

Through this class, you will investigate the significance of values and ethics and how they impact the decisions of global leaders today.

You will develop a theoretical understanding of how the leader’s personal ethics are formed...and then as we examine the behaviors of contemporary leaders in real situations... we will study how leaders influence the ethical standards and behaviors of the organizations in which they serve.

This course will also help you to develop and to hone your research skills as you review scholarly literature and become more informed on the creation of new knowledge in the area of leadership and ethics.

This experience will be significant for your doctoral-level research in the form of a dissertation. The emphasis is on your becoming a scholar of as well as a contributor to business practice.

We are so very pleased to partner with you in your academic pursuits and we’re looking forward to working and learning with you.
